DROFESSOR ANDERSON'S ADVERTISING CURTAIN,

this country, the DVERTISING CURTAIN, OR MERCANTILE DROP SCENE, ADVERTISING CURTAIN. OR MERCANTILE DROP SUSINE, which will be spiendidly painted and divided into ornamental panels; the designing, painting and ornamentalize being entrusted to the decorative skill of Mr. Gaspard Maeder. Each panel will be a senarate illustrated and embellished advertisement of the yarties who may contrart. The name of each, piace of business, and whatever they may wish to advertise, will be leighby, artistically and elaborately written, so as to attract the attention of those who sit in front of the house, and be alike readable form dress circle, parquet and family circle.

The benedit to be derived by advertisers from this nor elly will be apparent at the first glance. The buriesque is to be in three acts, and he at the first glance. The buriesque is to be in three acts, and he at its capacit that the "cruit" the piece will be four forty-eight nights, and that the average nightly attendance will be along the course of two months, gives an aggregate total of 120,000 persons, by each of whom the advertisement is sure to be read. Then it is intended that there shall be eight Matikers, the average attendance at each of adults.

mation requisite for the scheme to be thoroughly understood, it is absolutely essential that all applications for space on the curtain should be made immediately, as it will require the full exertions of the artist for every available hour, to complete the curtain by the 2d of June. The competition for the best panels is already very great, and the most eligible ones are to be secured only by applying instantly.

The theatre will positively open for the representation of Professor Anderson's Great Spectadular Burleeque on the date above given. Those who have as yet omitted to see Figs Batesiah, the young Queen of the stage and star of the first magnitude in the constellation of American talent, should visit the Winter Garden without delay, as the last representation of this extraordinary artist will take place on lay 31, and the great Burleeque be produced on the following Monday.
